INDEX

TO

VOLUME XLVII.

America in the Centennial Year, 149; the American "politician," 151; American difficulties, 153; necessary reforms, 155; obliteration of party landmarks, 157; present questions, 159; present political questions, 161; Civil Service and other reforms, 163; the policy of Protection, 165; development of American manufactures, 167; Free Trade in the future, 169; the Centennial Exhibition, 171; culture, 173; domestic architecture, 175; Anglo-Americans not artisans, 177.

Ancient Classics for English Readers, 261.

Anglo-American Churches of the United States, the, 414; establishment and disestablishment, 415; endowment and disendowment, 417; the process of establishment in America, 419; Plymouth Colony and Massachusetts, 421; New England church despotism, 423; the Baptists and Rhode Island, 425; the Central and Southern Colonies, 427; influence of Whitefield's labours, 429; the Colonial churches in 1776, 431; Anglo-American churches of the present, 433; Congregationalism in New England, 435; the strongholds of Methodism, 437; Methodism in New England, 439; ditto, 441; Presbyterianism and Congregationalism, 443; the Baptists and the Episcopalians, 445.

'Anglo-Jewish History,' Picciotto's, 236.

Arctic Heroes, 391; John Cabot and America, 393; Sebastian Cabot, 395 North American Indians kidnapped, 397; Cortereal and G. Verazzano, 399; French explorers, 401; Willoughby and Richard Chancellor, 403; Burrough and Frobisher, 405; Queen Elizabeth, 407; Henry Hudson, 409; from Hudson to Franklin, 411; the Expedition of 1875-6, 413.

'Artistes Anciens et Modernes,' par Ch. Clément, 254.

'Astronomical Lectures,' Harris's.

'Biographical Sketches,' Miss Martineau's, 503.

Books of Verse, Some, 505.

Books of Mr. Grosart's Editing, 511.

'Charges,' Archdeacon Sinclair's, 484.

Charles G. Finney, 339; his place and influence, 341; early life, 343; ministry of Rev. G. W. Gale, 345; the turning point, 347; conflict and victory, 349; confession of faith, 351; experience and doctrine, 353; discussions on the atonement, 355; on universalism, 357; introduction to the ministry, 359; the first campaign, 361; methods and characteristics, 363.

Colossians, Lightfoot on the, 204.

Councils, Dr. Hefele on the, 199.

'English Female Artists,' Clayton's, 515.

Fernley Lecture of 1876, The, 472.

'Future Life,' Martin's, 186.

George Eliot and Comtism, 446; the critic's desiderata, 447; the non-Christian yearning for Christian fruits, 449; why the juxtaposition of George Eliot and Comtism, 451; Daniel Deronda and Middlemarch, 453; Romola, 455; duty springing from antecedent, 457; Maggie Tulliver and Jane Eyre, 459; 'The earth is full of labour,' &c., 461; the new philosophy's message of help to man, 463; duty to race, 465; the Judaism of Daniel Deronda, 467; insufficiency of her teaching, 469; the Israel of antecedent and race, and the Israel of God, 471.

Hidden Life in the Colossian Epistle, The, 365; union with Christ, 367; union with Christ's ascension, 369; mystery, 371; mysticism, 373; Meyer and De Wette, 375; the Berlenburg Bible, 377; contemplative mysticism, 379; fellowship with the ascended Lord, 381; crucifixion and mortification, 383; "things above," 385; errors, 387; the final revelation, 389.

'Historical and Architectural Lectures,' Freeman's, 495.

'History of Protestantism,' Wylie's, 526.

Holy Spirit in the Epistle to the Ephesians, 31; the Trinity, 33; Redemption, 35; the temple of the church, 37; one body and one Spirit, 39; the church and the individual, 41; the Spirit's offices, 43; the order of grace, 45; the seal and the earnest, 47; the anointing, 49; the personality of the Spirit, 51; the inner man, 53; the Spirit and light, 55; warfare and prayer, 57; "filled with the Spirit," 59.

'Hours of Thought,' Dr. Martineau's, 476.

'Hulsean Lectures,' Vaughan's, 260.

Indian Pantheism, 309; pantheism in the Vêdas, 311; texts of the Vêdas, 313; texts, 315, 317, 319; text-book of Vêdântism, 321; Vêdântist polemics, 323; final absorption, 325; poetical compend of pantheism, 327; doctrine of illusion, 329; poetical pantheism, 331; a Divine revelation, 333; Indian materialism, 335; summary of schools, 337.

'Life in the Southern Isles,' Gill's, 255;

'Life of Lord Macaulay,' Trevelyan's, 224.

'Life of Rahel,' Jennings's, 499.

'Life of Swift,' Forster's, 233.

Microscope and its Revelations, The, 2; high and low powers, 3; the borderland and continuity, 5; vegetable motion and will, 7; vegetable sensibility, 9; sensitiveness of plants, 11; vegetable respiration, 13; carnivorous plants, 15; vegetable digestion, 17; animal and vegetable monads, 19; animal or plant, 21; origin of life, 23; spontaneous generation, 25; germs and monads, 27; the gift of life, 29.

Old Testament, The, 19.

'Opium Policy of Great Britain,' Tinling's, 263.

'Paul, the Apostle of Jesus Christ,' Baur's, 473.

Philosophy in Ancient India, 81; the Sânkhya, 83; two eternal principles, 85; the Sânkhya atheistic, 87; the Nyâya, 89; classification of existences, 91; the Vaishêshika, 93; atomic theory, 95; resemblances to Western ideas, 97; final emancipation, 99; dualism of the Nyâya, 101.

Problem of Human Existence, The, 61; design and adaptation, 63; creative will and power, 65; possible creations, 67; man's discipline and education, 69; "the religion of humanity," 71; the Christian solution, 73; the Fall and recovery, 75; redemption, 77; the future life, 79.

Recent Books of Verse, Some, 238.

'Religion and Science,' Gibson's, 211.

Retribution, 119; is immortality condition or natural? 121; the foundation of natural religion, 123; utilitarianism and independent morality, 125; the reality and power of moral distinctions, 127; Hume's intellectual scepticism, 129; its bearing on morality, 131; Hume confuted by the logic of events, 133; four great axioms, 135; supremacy of the moral maxim, 137; the argument rational, 139; the basis of science speculative, 141; contrast of man and nature, 143; an eternal future demanded, 145; natural and revealed religion, 147.

'Ritualism in the Church of England,' Loraine's, 215.

Roman Catholic Literature in China, 293; Ricci and Schaal, 295; miracles, 297; priestly robes, 299; prayers to the saints, 301; indulgences and purgatory, 303; St. Joseph, patron saint of China, 305; Romish Christianity, 307.

'Sermons,' Dr. Allon's, 479.

'St. Christopher,' &c., Baxter's, 518.

'Synoptic Gospels,' Reuss', 179.

'Theological Quarterly,' Dickinson's, 488.

'Trident, Crescent, and Cross, The,' Vaughan's, 490.

'Turkish Power, The,' 266; early Tartar ravages, 267; Turks, modern Tartars, 269; Saracen civilisation, 271; barbarism of the Turks, 273; conversion to Mahometanism, 275; rise to power, 277; House of Seljuk, 279; early Sultans, 281; the fall of Constantinople, 283; the Turk a destroyer, 285; the future, 287; reform impossible, 289; Europe's stumbling-blocks, 291.

'University Sermons,' Mozley's, 218.

Walton and Herbert, 252.

Wordsworth's Prose Works, 102; the "Lost Leader," 103; his change of views, 105; on the Catholic Relief Bill, 107; editorial mystifications, 109; the I.F.M.S.S., 111; genesis of "The Ancient Mariner," 113 "We are Seven," 115; the poet on tight shoes, 117.

'Zoology of the Bible,' Coultas's, 221.

76